A FAR EASTERN RECRUIT AT THE FRONT.

GRAPHIC STORY OF HIS EXPERIENCES.

The following account, written by a Far Eastern recruit known to many in Hongkong, has been communicated to us:—

Starting from August 4th, the day I re-enlisted, I was the first man to rejoin the Scottish after the declaration of war. We had three weeks' strenuous training in London, and then were drafted out to St. Albans, where we had another three weeks' hard work in the country; that brought us up to the 15th September, the day we were ordered off to France on Active Service. We were awfully bucked because we were the first Territorial battalion to be sent to the front. We were rushed off, didn't even have time to say good-bye to our people. We went from Southampton to Havre, and from there to Villeneuve St. George, just South of Paris. From then, 17th September, to 30th October we were all over France, divided up doing all sorts of work. We were ambulance men, stretcher bearers, guards on railways, railway transport orderlies, out with Royal Engineers on telegraph lines, burying dead and supplying funeral guards, police in Paris, Rouen, Amiens, and Boulogne, interpreters, doctors—the men who were—just any old job that came along. I spent a fortnight out with the Royal Engineers repairing telegraph and telephone lines that had been destroyed by the Germans on their retreat between Meaux and Soissons, and then on the job of taking German prisoners from the firing line to Havre, from where they were sent to England. I made many journeys on that work, each journey from St. Omer, where we were then, to Havre, took three days, and as we travelled in a cattle truck, it wasn't awfully comfortable travelling. All this sort of thing went on from 15th September till the end of October. I was also working at Calais, Boulogne, Etaples, St. Omer, etc., in turn on all sorts of jobs.

IN THE THICK OF THE FIGHT.

At last our call came that we were wanted, and they took us, the whole Battalion, in motor buses, from St. Omer, in N. France, to Ypres in Belgium, in a night. From there we marched to a small place South of Ypres, called St. Eloi, where we spent the night in ruined houses till the morning, the 31st October, the day of our baptism of fire and fighting. We were sent up into a position in the early dawn of 31st, and there waited till about 10 o'clock, some two miles behind the firing line, near Messines. Unfortunately, we were spotted by German aeroplanes, and when we made a dash about 12 o'clock to get into our position we were met, right bang in the open, no cover, on top of some hills, by artillery and howitzer fire, and maxim and machine gun fire on our flanks. Couldn't advance, couldn't retreat, and they shelled us from 12 o'clock till dark at 6 o'clock, until I thought that hell had been let loose. It was appalling. The shells, shrapnel and their big guns, "Jack Johnsons," came over at the rate of about 40 a minute, all these long weary, awful, six hours, and we lay there, couldn't move, not firing a shot in return, with only three small guns supporting us. It was just murder; man after man was shot, or hit by shrapnel, and each chap had given up hope and was waiting for his turn. God, it was awful; and more so every time I think of it. I was the extreme left hand man of the line, and every shell burst within 30 yards of me, and they came over about every other second. At least a dozen times I was nearly buried by Jack Johnson shells, and the shrapnel and maxim bullets never stopped whistling about me. I gave up all hope that afternoon. My pack, a sort of bag on my back, was cut in two by a piece of shrapnel about the size of a soup plate, and I was rolled over and over along the ground for at least fifteen yards. At dark, when the Germans stopped shelling us, we started to entrench ourselves. We had had no staff orders all that day, so we presumed that we had to stay where we were. At about 1 o'clock early morning, when we were just finishing our part of the trench, we suddenly found Germans behind us! Some dressed as Indians, with blackened faces even, and others as Highlanders in kilts! Mind, this is all absolutely Gospel truth. I challenged them, and they said they were Scottish, some said Indians, and some wanted to surrender. We finished them all off, about eighty, of which I bagged fourteen. They were within 20 yards of us when we first saw them. I was in an advanced trench, some 100 yards in front of the rest of the Scottish, like this:—

A ..... my trench with 40 others.
B ..... remainder about 700 men. We found then that the Germans during the early night had got all round us by A and B, because the other English regiments at A and B had retired at dusk that evening, and we, "poor devils," had had no orders to move. Twice that night the whole Battalion were surrounded, once by Prussian Guards, and once by Bavarians, and twice we fired and charged, and charged again, and drove them off. At dawn we were still in our trenches and then the Germans attacked us again, in front and on both sides, 28,000 of them to our 700; and after ten minutes we had to retire and we did so gradually about a mile, where we found our supports and then turned again and drove them off altogether.

That is the history of the Scottish and the battle of Messines, our baptism of fire. Twenty hours' fighting, no rest, fighting for our very lives; casualties 340 out of 1,000, jolly heavy for one day's fighting, but the German casualties were between 3,500-4,000, so we made up for the deaths of our men. It was awful, everywhere we went that night, Germans, Germans, Germans. One fired and bayoneted until one was absolutely covered in blood and smoke. My brother and I both came through without a scratch, and God only knows how! Bayonets, bullets, everything seemed to miss us by inches. I lost myself in the retirement that morning, picked up a wounded man, shot through both legs and brought him to the nearest ambulance, and I couldn't find the Scottish, so went off with the Worcestershire Regiment into the trenches for two days while the rest of the Scottish were resting. I found them eventually and had a day's rest, and on the 4th we went off again to Ypres, and on the 5th went into the advanced trenches (we were in the advanced trenches with what remains of the Grenadier and Irish Guards and Munster Fusiliers; there were only about 500 of them in all) and we were still in them fighting on the 13th, when I was sent out sick, being shelled all day by the German artillery and night attacks all night by the German infantry. Absolutely hellish. We were standing, and lying down to sleep in two feet of water for two days, and soaked through again and again by rain. God, it was appalling!

HOME TO BE NURSED.

No wonder I got fever and ague again, having it already in my system. We were relieved the following night, so I hear from my brother. I came down to Ypres, to the Hospital, from there in a Red Cross motor to Popering (1); two days there and from thence to Hoozhenek (2); a day there, thence to Boulogne by Red Cross train, two days there, from there by hospital ship to Southampton, a night in hospital in Winchester, and so home to be nursed. I have a month's leave to get fit in, but I don't think I can manage it in that time, because my cholitis is jolly bad, although my fever and ague are quite gone now. Our casualties in the London Scottish now amount to quite 500, half the regiment. The night of Messines the Germans we killed had just murdered our Doctor and wounded, bayoneted them all, and they set fire to the farm in which all our badly wounded were. They're pleasant people! Fighting in the trenches isn't so bad, although you are bound to be hit sometimes, perhaps sooner than later.

GERMAN ATROCITIES.

And all these stories you hear, all these stories you read, of German atrocities are absolutely true. I have had tales told me by sisters, brothers, mothers, and fathers of people things have happened to, and I have seen with my own eyes, things the telling of which to you would make you ill and sick. You wouldn't believe them; I didn't till I got to Belgium and France. The Germans are far worse than cannibals. It is awful, and this war is too appalling for anything. The Germans always shell on Red Cross people and hospitals if they get the chance, and they torture people if they think they can get any information from them. The old Spanish Inquisition days are nothing compared to the things they do, and these people are the cultured race that hope to rule the world! We must win, we're going to, otherwise it means the end of all things—England is at last waking up.

My present bag of Germans is 20 killed, 600 wounded, and some few prisoners, so I have had a good haul!

I had two slight wounds, one in my lower jaw and one in my knee, but neither as bad enough to take me away from killing Germans!

A LAY OF THE TRENCHES.

A resident of Woking has received from her son, an officer of the R.F.A., the following amusing verses written by one of his men, Gunner Louis Smith:—

Our happy family consists of three—
The Corporal, the Bombardier, and me.

In various climes it's been our fate to roam,
Till here together we have found a home.
It isn't furnished in the latest mode,
But then we trust it isn't a permanent abode.

The roof was once, I think, a stable door;
Of straw's the carpet that adorns the floor;
The walls are of a quite superior clay,
That sticks to one, and won't be lured away.
Adown those walls the melting snow is trickling,
And down the Corporal's neck—his comments are most tickling.

We're somewhat limited for space, 'tis true;
If I turn round, to meet the other two.
And getting in and out becomes a bore,
When one is rather wider than the door.
But still we're not too slow in taking cover,
When those confounded German souvenirs come over.

In reminiscent mood we sip our tea—
The Corporal, the Bombardier, and me.
We harken back to Mums and Le Cateau;
"I wonder what's become of so-and-so." I hear that Nobby Johnson's sent a letter To say they took a leg off, but he's better.

"Pass up the possey, if it's not all done"— But bark: "Eyes front. Turn out and man your gun."
There goes the tea, the jam is on the floor;
I've stuck again—my blessings on this door.
Three thousand yards, corrected 1-2-3,
And "Fire"—My German friends, a souvenir for you.

Down falls the night, and also falls the rain.
The sentries mount, we seek our home again;
And, clinging close the blessed warmth to keep,
Seek brief oblivion in a dreamless sleep.
Till dawn the day upon the sodden trenches,
And calls to "Action front" our Army known as French's.

COMPANY REPORT.

HONGKONG CANTON AND MACAO
STEAMBOAT CO., LTD.

The report of the Board of Directors is as follows:—
The Directors beg to submit to the shareholders the report and statement of accounts for the year ending 31st December, 1914.
After paying running expenses, salaries, premium of insurance, repairs, an interim dividend paid in August last of $40,000 and all other charges, and after including the sum of $27,827.75 brought forward from last account, there remains a debit balance of $12,601.27, which has been carried forward.
The sum of $32,000 has been withdrawn from the sum standing at credit of equalization of dividend account to provide for the payment of a final dividend of forty cents per share, absorbing this sum, thus making a dividend of 5 per cent. for the year. The amount standing at credit of equalization of dividend account is now $218,000.
Heavily increased expenditure, coupled with severe competition on all lines throughout the year, complete cessation of all cargo movement since the commencement of hostilities in August, and greatly decreased passenger traffic during same period due to the same cause and restricted movements of steamers by port regulations, largely account for the poor result of the steamers working during the period under review.
The usual overhaul and repairs have been effected during the year and the steamers are all in good working order.
The cost of the extraordinary repairs to the shell plating and framing of the steamer Manan has been debited to the Special Repairs Fund as provided for at the last general meeting.
A second new steel and concrete wharf has been contracted for at Canton, and is now nearing completion. This wharf is being erected on joint account with the China Navigation Co., Ltd.
The regrettable death of Mr. G. Friesland, of Messrs. Melchers & Co., in March last, created a vacancy on the board, and Mr. A. Widmann was nominated by the directors in his place. Mr. R. Shewan, of Messrs. Shewan, Tomes & Co., has also been invited to rejoin the board. Mr. E.
Goetz resigned on departure from the Colony, and Mr. F. Lieb was nominated by the directors. Messrs. H. A. Siebs, M. Stoger, F. Lieb, C. Landgraf and A.
Widmann resigned their seats on the board, and the directors nominated Messrs. H. W. Locker and Ho Tung to fill the vacancies subject to the confirmation of the shareholders at this meeting.
In accordance with the Articles of Association, Messrs. D. Landale and P. H.
Holloak retire from the board by rotation, but, being eligible, offer themselves for re-election.
During the absence of Mr. W. H. Potts, the accounts have been audited by Mr. F.
Maitland. Mr. W. H. Potts having resigned, the directors recommend the election of Mr. F. Maitland in his stead.
The retiring auditors, Messrs. A. O'D.
Gourdin and F. Maitland, offer themselves for re-election.
DAVID LANDALE, Chairman.

W. E. CLARKE, Secretary.
We report that we have audited the above balance sheet with the books and vouchers of the Company in Hongkong and with the returns from the Company's Agencies. We have also verified the securities representing the investments, and in our opinion such balance sheet is properly drawn up so as to exhibit a true and correct view of the state of the Company's affairs at 31st December, 1914, according to the best of our information and the explanations given us, and as shown by the books of the Company.
We have obtained all the information and explanations we have required.

FIGHTING TO THE LAST.

HOW THE "GOOD HOPE" WENT DOWN.

SHIP'S SIDE RED-HOT.
A tragic but splendid story of the naval battle off Coronel, in which the Good Hope (the flagship of Rear-Admiral Craddock) and the Monmouth were lost, is told in a letter just received from a member of the crew of the Good Hope, whose escape was largely due to the gallant action of the Monmouth in re-engaging the German cruisers.
After describing the opening of the battle and the superiority of the German ships in guns, the writer says:—
"The poor old Good Hope and Monmouth were subjected to a terrific fire, and the admiral's last words were, 'Get away at full speed,' but our skipper turned to his first lieutenant, and asked, 'Am I to leave the admiral?' But the case was hopeless. It would have been certain suicide."
"We tried to distract their attention to us by having flames from our funnels, so as to make a target, because it became dark about eight p.m., and then some of the enemy's ships, seeing the state of the Good Hope, chased us and the Monmouth. The Monmouth was making water very badly, and at her best could only have done about twelve knots, whilst our engines were still safe, and we could go."
"MONMOUTH'S" LAST MESSAGE.
"So the captain of the Monmouth, like the brave man he was, signalled his last message, 'I can't get away, because my ship is making water rapidly forward, so I shall go back and engage the enemy' (thus allowing us more time to escape) and endeavour to ram or torpedo one of them. What he really did no one knows, and probably never will."
The writer speaks of the coolness of officers and men on the Good Hope during the battle, and of the cruiser's thrilling race for safety.
"Salvo after salvo hit the poor decrepit old Good Hope and Monmouth' (he continues), "and they say the eight, as the four funnels of the Good Hope were blown up by explosion, was awful. The ship's side was red-hot, and even after that, with all her 'midships blown out of her, she continued firing. Somehow or other, she had got quite close to the enemy in the darkness, and we think that her steering gear was shot away."
"The rays of the moon were then the only light to go by. 'Fire at the ship in the rays of the moon,' our officer shouted. After the Monmouth went back to fight to cover our escape—she had about seventy-six more shots fired at her, and after that no more news of her."

RETRIBUTION.
"But our officers on the bridge say they distinctly saw two cruisers give chase to us; but the dear little Good Hope left them.
They may go their twenty-three or more knots, but we exceeded that, getting more horse-power out of her than has ever been done."
"The skipper says he hopes we will be round the other coast shortly, as there is a time of retribution coming to these Germans, and I want to be there to see them smashed up."

From the Financial News:—All the German breweries are now working in "neutral" territory—Sweden, Holland, Denmark, for example. The profits go to buy bombs and bullets for killing British soldiers and prolonging the war. Boycott all German beer, no matter where it is brewed.
Overheard at East Wharf, Tanjong Pagar:—Why don't they knock away the N.D.L. from that closed godown door?—Oh, it's all right, it stands for Nothing Doing Later!—Straits Times.

Each Cord is thoroughly impregnated with rubber and laid in two layers, diagonally, one

LOYALTY IN INDIA.

THE news that "all is quiet on the Frontier and in India" is eloquent proof of the loyalty of the people to the King-Emperor. When we mention that the Indian National Congress has recently held its annual session, this tranquillity will probably be considered all the more remarkable, because the Indian National Congress is very widely regarded as an organisation which is continually creating dissatisfaction in India, since it aims at obtaining concessions in the direction of autonomous government. The recent session of the Congress, however, has afforded the clearest proof that the aspirations of the intellectual Indian for a larger share in the government of the country are far from being inconsistent with complete loyalty to the British Raj. At this session of the Congress, which was held in Madras at the end of December, over three thousand people gathered from all parts of India.
A suggestion had been made that the Congress should not be held while the war lasted, but the Chairman of the Reception Committee, Sir SUBRAMANIAM IYER, a former Judge of the Madras High Court, in welcoming the delegates, expressed himself as glad that the suggestion, though made with the best of motives, had failed to find acceptance. "Had it found acceptance," he said, "we should have, in my judgment, unwittingly made a serious blunder. For, we would have lost a golden opportunity of giving expression in our united capacity as Congressmen to our unswerving devotion and attachment to His Imperial Majesty, His Throne and His House at this hour of extreme trial and peril. We should have also failed to avail ourselves of such an opportunity to make known to the world that we regard with the deepest admiration and reverence the heroic effort now being made in the cause of right and justice, of civilization and human progress, by the great nation to which we owe all the peace and safety we enjoy. Nay, we should have laid ourselves open to the charge of ingratitude to our protectors in not coming forward to manifest our sympathy with them, whilst they are thus engaged in this holy struggle. Furthermore, our omission thus openly to avow our support to the Imperial cause was likely to be twisted by such fanatical calumniators of the educated Indian as Sir VALENTINE CHURCH, and others of his temperament, as president evidence of our undisguised disaffection to our rulers and even sympathy with the enemy." These sentiments were endorsed by the Congress later in a resolution conveying to His Majesty the King-EMPEROR and the people of England its profound devotion to the Throne, its unswerving allegiance to the British Constitution and its firm resolve to stand by the Empire at all hazards and all costs.

Mr. SUBRAMANIAM IYER, who moved the resolution in an eloquent speech, said the Indians were loyal because they were patriotic; because they felt that the stability of India was bound up with the permanence of the British Raj; and because also Indians felt that the best prospects of the country and the advance of her people were also linked with the permanence of British rule. They were loyal because they were convinced that, under the aegis of the British Crown, India was going to enter into the conference of States of the world. With such expressions of opinion as these before us the activities of the Indian National Congress cannot but be viewed in a more favourable light than has been usual in the past. What India wants was very clearly indicated in the address of the President. "We have a people," he said, "awakening to self-consciousness; thousands of our boys are receiving education on Western lines in Indian Universities based on Western models; hundreds of them are daily flocking to the Universities of Europe, America and Japan, and on their return home spreading the knowledge that they have acquired. You may chain Prometheus, but the fire is lighted and cannot be extinguished. India wants a higher life, a wider sphere of activity and usefulness. India wants that her Government should be consistent with her growing self-respect and intellectual India wants that the presumption which has all along existed, and which the Board of Directors in 1883 made a vain attempt to dispel, namely, that the Indians can only rise to a certain limit, should be removed from the precincts of her Court, and the door to her services should not be closed by artificial barriers against her own sons. India wants that her children should have the same rights of equal citizenship as other members of the Empire. India wants the removal of vexatious hindrances on the liberty of speech and freedom of the Press, fruitless and dangerous alike to the Government and the people. And, above all, India wants that her Government should be an autonomous Government under the British Empire." Later on in his address the President tentatively suggested the lines of development to be aimed at. From the very extent of India and the diversity of her population, he said, India must have a system of government modelled on the lines of the Commonwealth of Australia, or the United States of America, modified according to Indian conditions and presided over by a representative of the Sovereign. In this constitution all would find a place, the Englishman as well as the Indian, the prince as well as the peasant, and all communities, by a judicious combination of the methods of election and selection in the case of the less advanced. This ideal is a long way from achievement yet, but there can be no doubt that the splendid part which India is playing in the war will cause these aspirations to be viewed with greater sympathy in the future than they have perhaps been in the past because the most complete assurance has been given that these aspirations are not inconsistent with the loyalty and devotion of India to the British connection.

expansion in Northern Manchuria."The engagements of the Bishop of Victoria for to-morrow (Sunday) are as follows:—9.30 a.m., address the Students at St. John's Hostel; 11 a.m., Confirmation at St. Paul's Chinese Church; and in the evening conduct a service at the was Commodore in Hongkong in 1910-12) was placed on the retired list at his own request last month. He went Home in April, 1912, and became assistant to the Admiral Commanding Coastguard and Reserves. In April, 1913, he was given command of the Téméraire in the First Battle Squadron. Recently Rear-Admiral Eyres had been at the Admiralty for special service.Engineer-Captain G. W. Roome, R.N., Chief Engineer of the Naval Yard, Hongkong, has been appointed to Pembroke Dockyard and leaves Hongkong in the middle of February to take up his new post. Captain Roome has made a large number of friends during his residence in the Colony who have been pleased to hear of his recent elevation in rank, and while they will be interested to learn of his appointment to a larger centre of naval activity they will sincerely regret his departure from Hongkong. The local Engineers and Shipbuilders Institution have special cause for regret, for in Captain Roome they have had a very popular President.Messrs. Wm. G. Hale & Company, rice circular state:—The drought from which our standing crops suffered during October has not had the bad result apprehended, rains having set in later and remedied all the evil effects of the drought. Everything now points to the harvest being a fair one, although late, and to the fact that the yield will prove equal to our last season's. As regards prospects of our market, extensive contracts have already been made with Eastern countries. These extend up to March-April, and will most likely keep paddy prices firm until they are fulfilled.

Beyond that, everything will depend upon demand, which is expected to become more lively as the season advances.AT THE SUMMARY COURT.
CHINESE GOD AS PLAINTIFF.There was an amusing interlude in the weary and methodical business of settling-day at the Summary Court yesterday. The plaintiff in the case in which the Tak Kung and another sued Man San Lau and another for $100, due on a promissory note, was duly called by the Court interpreter, and a woman appeared. She explained that Tak Kung was the joss and that she was the priestess.Mr. Justice Gompertz (to Mr. Haywood, who appeared for the defendant) —Apparently you have given a joss a promissory note. (Laughter.) The priestess further explained that money was collected for the worship of this particular god, and the society had a certain amount in funds, part of which was lent to the defendant.His lordship—don't think she is right in joining her joss as plaintiff. I have never heard of such a thing before.
(To Mr. Haywood)—You must not take any legal objections to this. You will not be able to get costs except against the lady.

EXPEDITING THE LAW.

In another case before Mr. Justice Gompertz, Mr. W. B. Hind, for one of the parties concerned, asked that the case be allowed to go over, pleading that there were "a lot of calculations" to be made.
Mr. C. F. Mason (the other side) objected, and wanted a day fixed for the hearing of the action.His lordship (to Mr. Hind)—You have had this case in the lists for a month, you know. The question is whether I shall bury you up or enumber my lists. I prefer to hurry you up. (Laughter.)

NOT AN ALIEN ENEMY.

In a case in which J. Ullmann & Co., jewellers, sued San Kwok Man for $250.18, Mr. Justice Gompertz asked Mr. R. C.
Faithfull (for plaintiff)—Your client is not an alien enemy, is he?
Mr. Faithfull—No, my lord, they are a French firm. If they were not, I should not appear.
Judgment was given for plaintiffs with costs, defendant being unrepresented and absent.

MACAO NOTES.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

MACAO, January 28th.
THE CHINESE MURDER.At present everything in Macao is very quiet. Nothing of a startling nature has occurred for some time, with the single exception of the Chinese murder. It will be remembered that in this affair one Englishman was killed and another wounded. The wounded man remained in Macao Military Hospital for some weeks. He had a revolver bullet in his thigh, and the doctors could not get it out, as there is no X-ray apparatus in Macao. A complete set of this apparatus was ordered from Europe before the war began, but it has not arrived, being probably in use in some of the hospitals in the war-zone. The injured man was therefore transferred to one of the Hongkong hospitals, where, it is hoped, the bullet will be extracted.

POLITICS.

Although Macao is a small city with very few Europeans, yet occasionally it is agitated by fierce political controversies. Such a controversy is taking place just now. Fault has been found with the system of government, but while one side wishes a change the other is strongly desirous of remaining in statu quo.
Macao is ruled by the Governor in conjunction with the Leal Senado or Municipal Council. Now it is asserted that the Leal Senado is only a sort of figurehead with no real powers. Accordingly, one section is in favour of its total abolition, while the others want to maintain it and to choose its members by election. Up till now only Portuguese have voted, but this right they desire to be extended to the Chinese. Those in favour of abolition say that to make this concession would be to put the entire Colony into the hands of the Chinese. A plebiscite of Macao and the Portuguese in the Far East was taken lately by the Portuguese paper, the Progresso, and a large majority resulted in favour of the preservation of the Leal Senado. The whole matter is still under discussion.

MORE GERMAN FABRICATIONS.

This week Hongkong paper money suddenly lost its value. The rate of exchange, which a short time ago was 23 cents premium, dropped to 10 cents.
All sorts of stories were circulated as to the cause. It was asserted here by Chinese that Britain had suffered serious reverses, that she had lost some of her colonies, and that, as a result, there had been a run on the Bank of England and British notes were of little value.
Another report was to the effect that a German squadron was approaching Hongkong from the East Indies. In many cases notes of the Chartered Bank were refused. The rumours which caused the depreciation of the notes are said to have their source in German reports circulated from Canton.

BACK FROM HOLIDAY.

The many friends of Captain Alan Malcolm, of the China Merchants' Company, will be interested to learn of his return to Macao after a long holiday at his home in Scotland. Capt. Malcolm has been on the China Coast for a long time, and was in charge of the Kiangtung for the last four years. He is again Captain of his old ship, running between Macao and Canton.

NEWS FROM GERMANY.

Parcels and letters from Germany bearing November dates have been received in Macao. Inside the parcel is a neat little pamphlet stating the case for Germany, and showing how Britain, France, and Belgium have been conspiring for years to overthrow unsuspecting Germany. How these things manage to reach Macao is a mystery. The receivers of the parcels are wondering if they can write and thank their German friends for their despatch in forwarding the goods.ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL.
HONGKONG FOOTBALL LEAGUE.

TO-DAY'S MATCHES.

The Club will meet the Police at 4.15 on the Club pitch this afternoon, and this will be the closing fixture of the competition for the season.In the second division, last Saturday's winners, Lam Long, will be up against the Victoria Rovers, and it will be interesting to see how the smart little Chinese players will fare against such big opponents as the Royal Artillerymen from Victoria Barracks. Should the Chinese Amateur Dramatic Society win, they will regain the top position in the League from which they were deposed on Wednesday by Queen's College, and so they may be depended upon to make the gunners go all the way. The game commences at 2.45.

UNITED SERVICES LEAGUE.

Matches in this competition will in all probability start on Saturday, 6th February. With this league and the H.K.F.C.
Shield Competition running side by side there should be plenty of sport at the Valley on every Saturday till the end of the season.

THE KAISER'S BIRTHDAY.

"A GOOD DAY FOR THE ALLIES."

LONDON, January 29th.
6.25 p.m.

To-day's Paris communiqué says:

The Germans had announced that the Kaiser's birthday would be the occasion of a great effort, but it did not turn out to their advantage. It was a good day for us, however, along the whole front. All the enemy's attacks were repulsed and all the French attacks progressed.

We demolished enemy trenches in Belgium; the British artillery southward of Ypres swept the routes to the concentration point of the German troops; there was gun and rifle fire at Arras, Albert, Roye, Noyon, and Soissons; the enemy's infantry attempted at various points to leave their trenches but were repelled by the fierce fire of our troops.

The losses of the Germans on Monday and Tuesday at Craonne certainly amounted to a brigade. Prisoners say that their reverse was serious. Our total losses were 800, due to the severity of the fighting and the subsidence of the old quarry (in which two companies of French troops were sheltering). We have now regained all the disputed ground.

There has been an artillery duel at Rheims, our heavy guns mastering the enemy's. We again completely defeated three attacks south-east of St. Mihiel. The enemy were also repulsed at Parroy-bourne. We progressed appreciably northward of Senones, and also gained ground at Bannesapt. We damaged the enemy's artillery defences and advanced in Alsace in the region of Ammerzwiller and Burnhaupt-le-haut and held the ground gained. We repelled an attack by a German battalion near Cernay.

LONDON, January 29th.
3.05 a.m.

The Paris evening communiqué says: The enemy on the night of the 27th inst. made no infantry attack. There were German bombardments and a sharp fusillade north-east of Zonnebeke, and artillery duels on the Aisne and in Argonne. Our troops north-west of Ammerzwiller, in Alsace, held the position, notwithstanding a furious bombardment, of the ground which they won during the day. There was quiet elsewhere.

HUGE GERMAN LOSSES.

OVER 20,000 IN THREE DAYS' FIGHTING.

LONDON, January 29th.
5.55 p.m.

To-day's Paris communiqué says:—According to the number of dead found on Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday at Ypres, La Bassée, Craonne, Argonne, Woëvre, and in the Vosges, the enemy losses were over 20,000.

MYSTERIOUS AUSTRO-GERMAN MOVEMENTS.

TO MEET ROUMANIA OR RE-ATTACK SERBIA?

LONDON, January 29th.
5.00 a.m.

It is stated in Petrograd that Austrians and Germans are massing forces in the Carpathians along an 80 miles front. Three Bavarian Army Corps have been definitely located in Hungary, on the western border of Transylvania, and south of Temesvár, in addition to six Austrian Army Corps.

The object of these movements is either to meet Roumanian intervention or to re-attack Serbia.

It is believed that the Germans are planning an advance through Serbia with a view to effecting a junction with the Turks.

SLAUGHTER ON THE "BLUCHER."

LONDON, January 29th.
5 a.m.

A newspaper correspondent conversed with wounded survivors from the German armoured cruiser Blucher in a hospital at Edinburgh. The men talked freely. They said that the ship quivered and reeled with the recoil of her own guns and the deadly British broadsides. The ship's guns were torn from their settings, and the whole of the gun crews were killed. Men were hurled from aloft, bleeding and dead. Others were swept from the deck like flies. Everywhere blood was trickling. The men in authority lost their heads, and consequently there was confusion.

One wounded sailor said: "Ours is a young Navy. Yours has had more experience." They left the ship in a most orderly manner.

FRENCH NAVAL MINISTER IN LONDON.

LONDON, January 29th.
4.10 p.m.

Reuter learns that the French Minister of Marine, M. Augagneur, has just terminated a visit to London. He has authorised a statement that he had an audience with His Majesty the King, and a series of conferences with Mr. Winston Churchill with reference to the disposition and employment of the Naval forces of the two countries. These conferences had shown a conformity of view between the two statesmen, and the close solidarity of the two Governments.

M. Augagneur saw Mr. Asquith, Viscount Haldane, Sir Edward Grey, Lord Crewe, and Mr. Arthur Balfour. He also visited Portsmouth Arsenal and Dockyard.

LONDON, January 29th.

The Cairo correspondent of the Daily Mail says that the Turks have been quiescent since the skirmish at Kantara.

The British on Sunday and Tuesday landed small parties at Alexandretta for the purpose of cutting six telegraph wires north and south of the town. The Turks offered no serious resistance.

British sailors destroyed the telegraph wires at Sidon.

PEKING, January 29th.

Consultations have taken place between Tong Shao-yi and foreigners in the Shanghai Settlement in regard to procedure for the suppression of the opium trade.

INTERNATIONAL SHIPPING AT TSINGTAU.

DISSATISFACTION AT JAPANESE EXCLUSIVENESS.

The Asahi says strong opposition is being raised by foreign, especially British, residents in China against the steps recently taken by the Tsingtao authorities to permit only Japanese vessels to enter the port of Tsingtao. They contend that this is an attempt to monopolize commercial interests.

The Shanghai Chamber of Commerce has passed a resolution urging the Japanese authorities to open the port to all shipping, and submitted the resolution to the British Consul-General there. A similar representation was also preferred by the Chamber of Commerce to Sir John Jordan, the British Minister, who happened to be visiting the port. On his return to Peking, the British Minister interviewed Mr. Hioki, the Japanese Minister, and asked for an explanation of the Japanese action, and expressed a desire that the privilege be extended to all shipping.

The Asahi in explanation of Japan's step, says Tsingtao there are at present 5,000 inhabitants, besides troops, and they are suffering from a lack of provisions. Under these circumstances, orders were issued to some steamers of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, the Osaka Shosen Kaisha, and South Manchuria Railway Company to undertake the transportation of provisions. Therefore, it is a mistake to conclude that all Japanese vessels are allowed to enter the port. As the harbour of Tsingtao is much damaged, vessels must moor far off the shore, and cargo has to be conveyed ashore by means of lighters.

To make matters worse, a large quantity of cargo is lying near the pier awaiting shipment. Furthermore, the number of Japanese Custom officials is a little over 30, compared with some 100 Germans before the recent battle. It is out of the question to expect such a small number of officials to successfully discharge the duties arising from the entry of vessels of all nationalities. It is unnecessary to add, says the journal, that permission to add will be given when the mine-clearing operations are concluded and the accumulated cargo is adjusted, and this will happen in two months.

The above circumstances were, says the Asahi, explained by Mr. Hioki to Sir John Jordan, who appreciated Japan's position and expressed his willingness to convey the facts to the British merchants. —Japan Gazette.

TO PROMOTE AVIATION IN JAPAN.

GENEROUS GIFT BY AN ENGLISHMAN.

It will be recalled that a certain foreigner, who chose to be anonymous, contributed to the Imperial Aviation Association ¥20,000 in December, 1913, and ¥150,000 in negotiable instruments in July last, with a view to assisting the development of aviation among the Japanese. The foreigner in question has again signified to the Association, through Viscount Chinda, Japanese Ambassador in Washington, his intention of contributing another ¥44,000 in negotiable instruments.

According to the Asahi, this munificent anonymous donor is Mr. Robert T. Anderson, a British subject, born in America. Beyond the fact that he is a business man, who has his home in London and his office in New York, everything is kept secret, in compliance with his request.

It is reported that he visited Japan several years ago with the Cleveland tourists.

The Imperial Aviation Association immediately sent a reply, through the Japanese Ambassador, expressing high appreciation of the donation. —Japan Gazette.

NOTES FROM PEKING.

PEKING, January 18th.
THE COLD SNAP.

It is an experience to have lived through the coldest weather known in Peking for twenty years and more. The severe cold of last Monday, with its keen, biting blast, was followed on Tuesday by a sand storm which did considerable damage to property, and by a drop in the temperature which sent the mercury down to between seven and ten degrees below zero. The wind abated the following day, but the intense cold continued, and for a large number of people the joy seemed to have gone out of life. Fortunately, Thursday brought a welcome relaxation, but not before many lives had been lost through exposure to the inclemency of the weather. Numbers of beggars and poor people were found frozen to death, several prisoners awaiting trial also succumbed, and a policeman died at his post. All governmental and public business was disorganised by the cold, the cessation of work being fairly general, and even the theatres closed their doors, as people refused to turn out for even the most attractive performance.

The plight of the poor people led to the re-establishment of charity houses, in which free meals are supplied, and fur waist-coats are to be distributed to the police, a regulation which seems peculiarly Chinese. It is believed here that we are not likely to have as cold weather again this winter, and consequently we are anticipating the future quite hopefully.

THE FINANCIAL OUTLOOK.

On excellent authority that the financial outlook is decidedly good. Not only has the Customs revenue proved greater than was expected, but the yield from the Salt Gabelle has surpassed all expectations and has exceeded even the Customs revenue. Add to that the fact that the Government has been able to reckon upon eight million dollars from the Salt Administration to tide them over China New Year, and it will be seen that there is reason for optimism. Besides that, it is expected that the second internal loan of $24,000,000 will be floated some time in April or May, and no difficulty is anticipated in raising the amount. In these circumstances the Chinese cannot be blamed for looking to the future with less misgiving than at the beginning of the war.

THE RELIGIOUS RELIEF FUND ENTERTAINMENT.

Peking certainly gave a cordial welcome to the members of the Tientsin Amateur Dramatic Club on Saturday night when they held the boards at the Pavilion and entertained a large audience as they had not been entertained before in this city. A sketch entitled, "From the Soup to the Savoury" was exceedingly well rendered by three ladies, and a combination of some nine or ten ladies and gentlemen made a very creditable showing as "The Lingerers' Limits" in which a la prierre and pierrette they sang solos and choruses. Six little girls representing the Allied nations sang "The Song of the Nations," but the feature of the evening was the wonderful sleight of hand and conjuring performance given by Mr. W. A. Davis. Over $1,500 were realised.

CHINESE SYMPATHY.

I am informed that Mr. Liang Shih-yi was greatly interested in the entertainment on Saturday night and wished to purchase tickets to the value of $500, and failing that for a repeat performance. This, however, could not be done, and Mr. Liang had to be satisfied with $150 worth of seats on Saturday night. It is indeed surprising to observe the manner in which the Chinese, many of whom do not understand the language of the stage, attend foreign entertainments.

LAND TAX REFORM.

It is being suggested that Sir Richard Dane should be entrusted with the duty of organising the land tax administration, and it is also being suggested that Mr. von Strauch, his deputy, should assist him in that work. There is no doubt that Sir Richard has considerable organising and executive ability, but I have heard another name put forward as collaborator, and that is Dr. W. Willoughby, the successor to Professor Goodnow as constitutional adviser to the President. Dr. Willoughby has had experience in Porto Rico in administrative work and is well qualified to deal with complicated accounts.

The number of traffic lines that have been interrupted during the cold snap is noteworthy. The land lines were nipped at Kiachia by the cold, the Chefoo-Shanghai and the Chefoo-Taku lines are interrupted, and so far as Peking is concerned messages have to come from Shanghai via Hankow.

TSINGTAU PROBLEMS.

Japan does not seem to be able to steer clear of misunderstandings. Her action at Tsingtao provoked protest from the British and American Ministers, and the discrimination exercised has been partially withdrawn.

NEW GERMAN MINISTER.

The new German Minister, Admiral von Hinz, reached Peking on Sunday evening after an adventurous journey from Mexico. He had to travel from Honolulu in a Norwegian ship in order to avoid touching Japanese ports. A large guard of German reservists met His Excellency at the railway station.

OUR LONDON LETTER.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

LONDON, December 22nd.

THE EAST COAST RAID.

Though the whole country was startled by the extent of the damage and loss of life caused by the last German raid on the East coast, the incident has by no means shaken the nerve of the nation, and the New Year will find us as cheery as ever in our optimism as to the outcome of the war. Recruiting has received a wonderful boom, for here we have another sample of cold-blooded murder of non-combatants to take toll for, and while the present results to Germany are moral failure and international reprobation, the ultimate results will be a more bitter retribution than some of us were disposed to expect a while ago. In short, the Scarborough raid was effective in stiffening our back, and the peace party are a mere dribble of feeble folks to-day. Lord Rosebery, in one of his eloquent speeches this week, scornfully wondered why the Germans should choose to shell Whitby—and then he remembered that Whitby had an ancient abbey, and he realised that such a relic would be irresistible to the lust for destruction that controls the German mentality. They were just raging mad, we are told by returned neutrals from Berlin, because of the rapid smashing up of the fleet of Admiral von Spee in the Southern Atlantic, and Prussian hate had to be assuaged by some act, even of sheer assassination, such as this attack on women and children.

This is the sort of stuff they are singing in Berlin to-day:—

We will hate Her for ever!
We will hate Her to the death!
Hate on the sea, and hate on the land!
Hate on the air, and hate on the wind!
Hate of those who wield the hammer,
Hate of those who wear a crown!
Hate for the men and for the women!
Hate even for the children!
For they are sons of England.

And a German officer, speaking to the neutral who brought that little spasm of melody home from Berlin last week, turned an eye with fine irony rolling as he said: "We have been very human up to now; we have not killed half the men we could; we have not destroyed half the towns that would have been easy to destroy; but if ever we reach England in force we shall respect nothing. We shall fully justify the name of Huns which the British papers seem so fond of giving us." But to do them justice, the more sober military men in Germany realise that they cannot invade these islands. All they expect to do is to raid us here and there, and kill a few hapless folk from time to time, in the hope that somehow or another that will make poor old John Bull shaky in the knees, and may be he will hold all his fresh troops at home or even call some back from the Continent.

All this is a fine tribute to the stopping qualities of those aforetime "contemptible" soldiers, concerning which the Kaiser rashly spoke words of depreciation, and those lads in blue who have put a stop to Germany's mercantile marine. We have in a very parlance, "got under the German hide," and the measure of their hate is the measure of our efficiency. The measure of their conception of the effects of their marauding on defenceless towns is also the measure of their mental stupidity and narrowness of outlook. I am not sure that the entire nation has not been tinged with the same complaint as the Kaiser, of whom a famous physician—formerly consulted by the Emperor—makes the prediction that if the monarch lives for another six months or so his insanity will be plain for all the world to see. He is, according to this authority, suffering from the same nervous complaint as his Hohenzollern ancestors, and under the stress of the present results of his folly he will reap the full measure of the disease within a very short time.

THE OUTLOOK IN AUSTRIA AND GERMANY.

Of all the combatant nations, Austria starts the New Year with the worst outlook. The catapaw of Germany, she finds her troops unwilling to fight longer, her organisation shockingly ineffective, her people disillusioned, her wounded dying untended, and Hungary positively declaring that if Germany is to be protected from invasion at the expense of the Hungarian people and Hungary's territory, Hungarian soldiers will be called by independent authority from their own homes. There are big events impending in the direction of unrest in that quarter of the continent.

Germany for the time being is a bit better off, but there is a decided change in the atmosphere of Berlin. The night cafes are not so boisterous; there is less boasting of "victories" for the people are coming to understand that they are being fed on fiction. The German Press organisation does not reserve all its imaginary reports for the benefit of China and other neutral countries. At home the people won't swallow quite such sheer baldness as appears in the German-subsidised papers in the Far East, but still the appetite is keen for the news that cheers and temporarily inebriates. The "next morning feeling" is, however, beginning to make itself felt, and the heavy hand of apprehension is settling down on the egotism of the Prussian, with the result that the boast lags a good deal in the making. According to statistics compiled by German papers in Switzerland they have lost already in killed, wounded and missing about a million, and a quarter men. Their unemployment increases, their most prized commodities, especially beer, are growing scarcer and increasing in price. Their last resources in men have been called up for training. Their backs are against the wall and because they feel that the British Fleet upon the seas and the khaki-clad Army on the Western front have proved their greatest obstacle to the conquest of France and the realisation of their dreams, they hate us as a wolf hates that is driven at bay.

For ourselves, our unemployment is rather less than usual. Almost all our cities are running factories overtime to keep pace with the orders and the Christmas trade has proved far better than was expected. These things, and the doubt as to the duration of the war, are the cause, I think, that have made our manufacturers cautious about extending their trade activities in the Far East for the present. They are keenly interested in China, but there will have to be less pressure on their works before they commit themselves to strenuous efforts to capture new trade abroad.

PROPOSED COALITION CABINET.

There is a renewal of the plan that under the abnormal conditions prevailing at the present time the country should have a Coalition Cabinet. Not that people are as all disheartened with the way the Cabinet of the day is doing its work—with the exception of the Home Secretary—but the demand is based on the contention that this is a time when all other considerations are wiped out in the needs of the whole nation, and therefore the Government should have at its disposal the whole of the best minds in the realm. It must be said that from the beginning of the war—indeed even before the actual declaration—the position have acted toward the Ministry in a manner of such perfect patriotism and single-mindedness that the results can hardly help to pass on for a considerable time after the cessation of the hostilities in Europe. The letter which Mr. Dunar Law made public the other day, in which he and Lord Lansdowne wrote to Mr. Asquith two days before the momentous die was cast for war, assuring the Government that they could rely on the support of the whole House in defence of Belgium and France, is all the more high-minded when it is recalled how bitter had been political strife on domestic questions around that time. Incidents such as this prove how completely the limited and narrow vision of our Teuton opponents has failed in diplomatic judgments that reported our Empire as absolutely rotten and trembling to its fall. I have only met one person with black views as to the effect of this war on the British Empire—and he was a constitutional prophet of woe for us, inasmuch as he was the American son of an Irish Fenian father. And even he, a little later, when he heard of the Kaiser's illness, exclaimed:—"I hope he won't die. I want to see him get defeated and have some years on St. Helena for his crimes before his end comes." That, I think, serves to demonstrate how far the reprobation of the Prussian action in running arms against all the codes of humanity and honour has moved all outside the taint of Prussian teaching, for if an Irish Fenian can come to hope for England's victory there must be strong elements indeed at work. We have had some pretty bad traitors in the Empire, from Slatin Pasha and De Weert to the hounds who are alleged to be giving away information now for German gold—but these are the exceptions that prove the rule of soundness, and I do not doubt that out of this war will come ties that bind even stronger the Empire to the Motherland. Instead of injuring the war will strengthen the foundations of British dominion.

WILL LORD KITCHENER GO TO THE FRONT?

There is a state of expectant cheerfulness in clubs where men foregather who are usually able to get an inkling of the true state of affairs. One thing that is discussed is the possibility of Lord Kitchener finding himself out at the front in the Spring, in command of the new army that bears his name. It is a plan that may well appeal to the conqueror of the Sudan, but there are plenty of men in the Service who regard him as a better organiser than tactician. Should he go to the front, however, he would not interfere with Sir John French, and both would be under General Joffre for whom Lord Kitchener has the greatest admiration.

A SINISTER RUMOUR.

There is a very sinister rumour making the rounds of the clubs as to the doing of the Emperor of Austria. It is asserted that the facts go further than the serious illness of the aged monarch, and that material news is being withheld from the world by those who are trying to bridge the rapidly-growing gulf that is developing between Hungary and Austria, on account of the belief of the people of the former country that they are being sacrificed in order to save Germany from invasion.

THE OLD-TIME PANTOMIMES.

Old-time pantomimes have come back to London with a will these war times. For a year or two past they almost disappeared under an avalanche of fairy plays and similar fancies, but now we are to be regaled with modern versions of "The Sleeping Beauty" at Drury Lane, at the London Opera House there will be "Aladdin," at the Aldwych there will be "Cinderella," and at the Lyceum "Jack and the Beanstalk," while several other juvenilia plays will enlighten other parts of the metropolis at any rate in the nativity hours, before the darkness falls in its present day intensity. It is a first there seemed to be every indication of a dull time, but I am told on all sides that both in shopping and entertainment expenditure the Christmas and New Year spirit has been too strong for our London citizens to withstand it, even if these are hard. And they are very hard for many people; in fact they hit all to a greater or less extent. For example, there are a host of writers and artists who have contributed of their best to the gift books that have been published for this and that charity connected with the war, and these volumes are having such an enormous sale—especially the "King Albert's Book," edited by Hall Caine, and published by the Daily Telegraph—that the sale of other literature must have been seriously damaged. When in doubt the book buyer in search of a gift usually buys either the "King Albert Gift Book" or the "Princess Mary Gift Book." In either case he gets a good bargain—but the producers of other volumes for Christmas presentation have benefited the author, whereas the gift books go to aid the soldiers of our own land, or of Belgium. It is but another illustration of how the war has illumined self-interest with a golden streak of universal generosity.

FOUL BREATH.

WOMEN'S GREATEST MISFORTUNE.

The old saying that "distance lends enchantment" was never more aptly to the point than when applied to those people whose breath is laden with evil smelling odours. Many persons appear most attractive at a distance, but produce a feeling of pity and disgust when close to because of the condition of their breath. For instance, it makes little difference how beautiful a woman may be, or how charming her manner if her breath is foul, her charm is gone and she is at a disadvantage when ever she comes in contact with other people. Foul breath in women arouses in man a feeling of repugnance and a desire to get out of the company of such a woman as quickly as possible, and even women will avoid her. It is therefore important for every woman who values her personal attraction to take such care of herself that this unpleasant and unnecessary complaint is avoided or corrected. Men, women and children who are troubled with this complaint will drive their friends away more rapidly than any other affliction. People do not realise their breaths are bad because they are like those who are constantly employed among paints and varnishes—they get used to what is to others a most offensive smell. In nearly all cases this condition is due to Constipation and a disordered Stomach, and a coated Tongue, slight Headache, and feverishness are the sure signs that the digestive organs are retaining quantities of impurities from which the system should be free, thereby causing the Breath to become charged with the foul odour. In Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills there will be found a searching, cleansing remedy which will drive the masses of decaying corruption—that poison the Blood and contaminate the breath—from the system through the regular channels. They get at the cause as no other remedy does. They get at the foundation of the complaint. They give you clean bowels, a healthy stomach, a lively liver, and blood that is rich and red. They are safe, sure and reliable remedy, and will prevent many of the complaints so common if taken once or twice a week to keep the system in a healthy condition. They are purely vegetable, and their action is not accompanied by any nauseous or griping sensation, but is mild and gentle.

For all complaints arising from Imperfect Digestion and Impure Blood these Pills are unexcelled. They are a Perfect Blood Purifier a positive and permanent cure for Biliousness, Indigestion, Constipation, Headaches, Sallow Complexion, Liver and Kidney Troubles, Piles, Pimples, Boils and Blotches and for Female Ailments.

MR. RUDYARD KIPLING WITH THE CANADIANS.

GIRDING AT THE "YOKE."

Mr. Rudyard Kipling has another long and picturesque article in the Telegraph. It is the fourth of his series on the New Army, and describes in characteristically vivid phrases a visit to the camp of the Canadian troops. We quote the following passages:—

Here I could study at close hand "a Colony" yearning to shake off "the British yoke." For, beyond question, they yearned—the rank and file unreservedly, the officers with more restraint but equal fervour—and the things they said about the Yoke were simply lamentable. From Nova Scotia to Victoria, and every city, township, distributing centre, and divisional point between; from sub-tropical White River and sultry Jackfish to the ultimate north that lies up beside Alaska; from Kootenay, and Nelson of the fruit farms, to Prince Edward Island where motors are not allowed; they yearned to shake it off, with the dust of England from their feet, "at once and some time before that."

ANXIOUS TO GET TO WORK.

I had been warned that when Armageddon came the "Colonies" would "revolt against the Mother country as one man"; but I had no notion I should ever see the dread spectacle with my own eyes—or the "one man" so tall!

Joking apart, the Canadian army wants to get to work. It admits that London is "some city," but says it did not take the trip to visit London. Armageddon, which so many people in Europe know was bound to come, has struck Canada out of the blue like a noonday murder in a small town.

How will they feel when they actually view some of the destruction in France, these men who are used to making and owning their home? And what effect will it have on their land's outlook and development for the next few generations?

Older countries may possibly slip back into some sort of toleration. Now peoples in their first serious war, like girls in their first love-affair, neither forget nor forgive. That is why it pays to keep friends with the young.

"SUCH YOUNG."

And such young! They ran inches above all normal standards, not in a few companies or battalions, but through the whole corps; and it was not easy to pick out foolish or even dull faces among them.

Only a few months ago that entire collection poured into Valcartier camp in pink shirts and straw hats, desperately afraid they might not be in time. Since then they have been taught several things. Notably, that the more independent the individual soldier, the more does he need forethought and endless care when he is in bulk.

Just because we were all used to looking after ourselves in civil life," said an officer, "we used to send parties out without rations. And the parties used to go, too! And we expected the boys to look after their own feet. But we're wiser now."

"They're learning the same thing in the New Army," I said. "Company officers have to be taught to be mothers and house-keepers and sanitary inspectors. Where do your men come from?"

FROM EVERYWHERE.

"Tell me some place where they don't come from," said he, and I could not. The men had rolled up from everywhere between the Arctic circle and the border, and I was told that those who could not get into the first contingent were moving heaven and earth and local politicians to get into the second.

"There's some use in politics now," that officer reflected. "But it's going to thin the voting lists at home."

Sir Ernest Shackleton's Route 1,700 miles across the South Pole from sea to sea.

Writing to the agent entrusted with the purchasing of the stores for the forthcoming Imperial Trans-Antarctic Expedition, Sir Ernest Shackleton uses these words:

"The question of the concentrated beef supply is most important—it must be Bovril."

Men who trust their lives to their food take no risks, and Sir Ernest Shackleton, planning this expedition with as intimate a knowledge of stores as of ice and snow, has recommended the scientific value of Bovril.
